Creating a grayscale image with one item in color
by Carin Murphy

An interesting technique for photos is to make them grayscale, then colorize one item in the image. This couldn't be easier in Adobe Photoshop!

With the image open in Photoshop, go to the upper menu and choose Image>Adjustments>Desaturate. Although the may look grayscale, it is still in RGB color mode.

Access the History Brush tool in the tools palette.

Begin painting over the area that you want to be color. The History brush tool effectively "undoes" the desaturation in the previous step.
